FORT WORTH, Texas, July 20, 2026 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Sports Entertainment Gaming Global Corporation (NASDAQ: SEGG, LTRYW) ("SEGG Media" or the "Company") today announced that Sports.com Predict Team Miami Powered by Magnus finished third at the E1 Monaco GP over the weekend, delivering the team's first podium finish in 13 races this season.

Racing for Sports.com Predict Team Miami, Timmy Hansen crossed the line third in Final 2 to secure the result, with teammate Rianna O'Meara-Hunt also contributing across the weekend's qualifying, Place Race and Finals rounds. The result came at the UIM E1 World Championship's third visit to Monaco, hosted at the Yacht Club de Monaco on Port Hercule.

The podium places Sports.com Predict's title sponsorship of Team Miami on display at one of E1's marquee events, and lifts the team to seventh in the 2026 season standings with 50 points. Team Drogba Global Africa claimed its maiden E1 victory in Monaco, while a second-place finish for Team Brady moved that team into the Championship lead, nine points ahead of previous leaders Westbrook Racing by Visit Angola.

Sports.com Predict was named Title Sponsor of E1 Team Miami powered by MAGNUS in June 2026, integrating the platform into the team's branding and fan engagement activity across the UIM E1 World Championship. E1 Team Miami is co-owned by Marc Anthony.

Sports.com Predict is also the Official Prediction Partner of the UIM E1 World Championship presented by PIF for the 2026 season, a partnership announced in July 2026 that brings real-time prediction markets to E1's global fan base through exclusive prediction market rights, on-site branding, digital and social activations, and broadcast integrations across the Championship.

"A podium finish at Monaco is exactly the kind of visibility we set out to capture when we became Title Sponsor of Team Miami," said Marc Bircham, Chairman of SEGG Media. "Monaco is one of the biggest stages in global motorsport, and having Sports.com Predict on the podium there reinforces the value of live-sport visibility as we build out the Sports.com ecosystem."

E1 next travels to Southern Africa for the E1 Luanda GP, September 12–13, 2026.

Sports.com Predict will operate within applicable regulatory frameworks and only in jurisdictions where access to such markets is permitted.

About the UIM E1 World Championship presented by PIF

E1 is the world's first and only all-electric raceboat Championship sanctioned by the Union Internationale Motonautique (UIM), the international governing body for powerboating activities. The UIM E1 World Championship presented by PIF was established to create a new, exciting and competitive on-water racing Championship using electric technologies to focus efforts on innovations that help protect and restore our urban waters and coastal areas. The Championship sees teams featuring both a male and female pilot. Racing on the water in iconic cities around the world including Jeddah, Monaco, Lake Como, Lagos and Miami, teams are owned by some of the biggest names on the planet. These already include LeBron James, Will Smith, Marc Anthony and Steve Aoki from the world of entertainment, Rafael Nadal, Tom Brady, Virat Kohli, Thibaut Courtois, Kyle Kuzma and Didier Drogba from the world of sport. E1 pilots navigate tight and technical circuits behind the wheel of the electric E1 RaceBirds.
